Are you wondering if we said Dump dinners recipes intentionally? Does this mean that we simply dump all the ingredients in a pot and stir? Well, sort of, but not exactly. Yes, the concept is to blend some different food items together in the same pot, saucepan, casserole, roaster skillet, bowl, or crockpot. Dump Dinners are not supposed to require much preparation time, or organization in the kitchen. They are actually known for being the type of recipes that people who have less expertise in the kitchen would enjoy making, because they can be ready relatively quickly and require very little effort.

You may think because they require so little effort, that Dump Dinners may not be very appealing, however we are here to rectify this misconception. Dump dinners can be succulent dinners, simply prepared with lesser ingredients in a timely manner. You may have even heard of Dump dinners crockpot meals before, because that is essentially the intended method with which to use that type of cooking device—simply pour everything in and forget about it until you are ready to serve. Let's see what else is cooking...
