This unique book is a guide that enables art students to get the most out their time at art college by providing an understanding of how the art education system operates, a system that Brian Peers refers to as the 'Crossword Puzzle'. Further discussion is also provided on many other aspects and the result is a compendium of what he wishes he had known about art education at the start of his degree course rather than at the end. He believes that many students fail to realise or appreciate much of what is discussed in this book, the result sadly being underachievement or failure. After reading this book the student should have not only a deeper involvement with their degree but also an accelerated pace of learning. The content is based on Fine Art degree experience but much of what is discussed is applicable to the study of any of the creative arts. Although primarily intended for undergraduate students the book will be useful to anybody with an interest in art education.
